Staff Reflection:

"Since joining Parkerville Steiner College, I have felt re-energised as an educator. I am more attuned to the rhythm and flow of lessons, and I experience a renewed joy in planning learning sequences that allow deeper understanding to unfold."

"The space we are given as teachers to explore Main Lesson topics in depth is inspiring. I wish every young person had the opportunity to learn this way."

Who Are We?

Parkerville Steiner College provides a Steiner high school education in the Perth Hills, inspiring young people through a curriculum that integrates academic learning with creative, practical, and experiential elements.

Our staff are committed to inclusive practice, compassionate care, and the safety and wellbeing of every student.

This is a unique opportunity to shape inclusive education in a growing high school. In our small School of 120 students from Class 7 – 11), you will have the opportunity to know every student, build strong partnerships with teachers and families, and influence practice across the whole School. Your expertise will have a direct and lasting impact on students, staff and the future of inclusive education at Parkerville Steiner College.

What This Role Is Really About

We're looking for someone who believes that every student deserves to experience success in learning.

This role helps ensure that students who learn differently are supported not at the margins of the classroom, but within it. The opportunity to be a leader in this area and in the school exists for the right applicant.

The Work: Lead learning support across the high school by working closely with teachers to build inclusive classrooms where diverse learners can participate confidently in learning. Have the skills to confidently work with literacy and numeracy development, both to support and extend students.

Why It Matters: When teachers are supported with thoughtful strategies and practical adjustments, more students are able to access learning, build confidence, and remain connected to their class and school community.

Inclusive Learning in a Steiner High School

Through collaboration with teachers and EAs, thoughtful adjustments, and strong relationships with students and families, the Learning Support Coordinator helps ensure that students who require additional support are able to engage in learning and experience genuine progress.

In a small school environment, this role has the rare opportunity to influence practice across the whole school, ensuring that students who might otherwise struggle to meet their potential are noticed early and are supported effectively.

What You'll Do

- Work alongside teachers to develop inclusive classroom practices and whole-class learning adjustments.
- Maximise the impact of our high ratio of Education Assistants by actively leading EAs.
- Support teachers with practical strategies, scaffolding approaches, and differentiated teaching methods.
- Help teachers identify emerging learning needs and respond proactively.
- Develop and review Curriculum Adjustment Plans (CAPs) and Individual Education Plans (IEPs).
- Coordinate disability funding applications to maximise resources for students with additional needs.
- Ensure learning adjustments are understood and implemented consistently across all classes
- Meet with parents to discuss learning support plans and strategies.
- Build relationships with feeder primary schools to support smooth student transitions.
- Develop transition plans for incoming students and support new students starting at the school.
- Maintain documentation related to inclusive education.
- Support senior students requiring adjustments to engage meaningfully in Class 12 Independent Research Projects
- Actively contribute to staff meetings and help strengthen inclusive practice across the school

You'll Need

- Qualifications in education, inclusive education, or a related field.
- A strong understanding of learning differences, learning disabilities, and inclusive teaching practices
- Experience supporting teachers to adapt teaching approaches for diverse learners.
- A genuine desire to work with high school students.
- Familiarity with documentation, funding and reporting requirements related to inclusive education.
- Strong collaboration and communication skills.
- A genuine interest to learn about Steiner education and the philosophy that underpins the approach to teaching young people in a holistic way

You'll Thrive If

- You believe inclusive classrooms benefit all learners
- You enjoy working alongside teachers to strengthen their practice
- You are motivated by the opportunity to help students who might otherwise fall through the cracks
- You value working in a small school environment where students are well known by all staff.
- You are excited by the opportunity to shape inclusive learning practice across the school.

What We Offer

- The opportunity to shape inclusive learning in a Steiner high school
- Students who genuinely engage in learning and are engaging people to work with. They return respect and interest and are often commented on as being “a delight to teach”. Staff are dedicated, good-natured, and focused on positive outcomes for young people.
- Enlivening and engaging PD, and support for your professional growth and connection with colleagues.
- Work in the beautiful Perth Hills, surrounded by nature.
